Research Colloquium (2019-21 batch)

DISSERTATION PRESENTATION 2020 - 2021

'Research Colloquium' is one of the Best practices followed in Loyola College of Social Sciences. The main aim of this programme is to improve the quality of our student dissertations. Under this programme, our final semester students go through 2 phases of presentations of their research work at various stages of their dissertation. The first presentation happens right at the initial stage of their project when the researcher has finalized his/her research topic and the methodology he/she wants to adopt. This presentation helps the researcher to create a basic framework for his project and also the research methodology adopted is discussed in depth here. The last presentation is conducted once the students have completed their analysis and findings part. This is the most important stage of the presentation where the student is required to provide a complete picture of their dissertation. Usually student presentations are made at department level and after that a college level presentations are done. The college level presentations are done before an inter-disciplinary expert panel of 3-4 teachers and an audience comprising of research scholars, other dissertation students and junior students. Inter department level presentation helps the students to get insights on different topics from other disciplines. After each presentation a constructive feedbacks and comments will be providing to the researchers based on their presentations. The feedback and the corrective measures gathered from these presentations ensure that each and every dissertation submitted by a student of Loyola possesses optimum standard.

Loyola College of Social Sciences has adopted this best practice for a long time and it's still being practiced. On the onset of the Pandemic COVID-19 entire educational system of the college got transferred to online platform. In this scenario the dissertation presentation for the outgoing students were conducted through online. As it was through online, considering the technical issues, college level presentation was not conducted for the outgoing batch. The two phases of the presentation was able to conduct only at department level. The first stage of the presentation was the draft presentation and it was conducted on 22nd October 2020 at the respective department through online. Here each students were allotted 15 minutes for presenting their project followed by discussion. The presentation covered the following areas:

Title of the project
The Research Problem
Significance of the study
Brief Literature Review
Objectives/Research Questions
Hypotheses / Assumptions (if any)
Major Variables
Research design and Methodology

The Researchers stated their research problem in detail followed by its significance and other procedural methods. The faculties and the research scholars in the department provided their comments on the student presentation and also highlighted the drawbacks in the methodology section. The draft presentation was conducted in two days by each department. The whole session helped the researchers to frame an idea about what they have to do.

The second phase of the presentation was conducted on 2nd April 2021 through online. It was also conducted only at department level. The presentation covered the following areas:

Title of the project
The Research Problem
Significance of the study
Brief Literature Review
Objectives/Research Questions
Hypotheses / Assumptions (if any)
Major Variables
Research design and Methodology
Analysis and Interpretation
Findings and Conclusion

Suggestions

This is the last and important part of the presentation, where the students are in a stage of completing their findings and analysis part and thereby providing a complete picture of the dissertation. Constructive comments were provided by the expert panel which helped the researchers to make changes in their projects before their final submission.

This best practice and mechanism of Loyola has played a major role in improving the standard of the dissertations of final year students. It is also a platform for knowledge sharing and deliberation where both teachers and students gain more information on research. This process also inducts the students more on the avenues of research and helps to expand their knowledge about research.
